

making the required certifications were published in the Federal Register on April 19, 1996 (61 FR 17342).

The Department did not previously certify Venezuela and Nigeria because the governments of those countries had not demonstrated that their respective sea turtle protection programs were comparable to that of the United States, or that their specific fishing environments did not pose a threat to sea turtles. Although both governments have adopted programs comparable to the U.S. program, requiring shrimp trawl vessels to use seat turtle excluder devices, initial evidence this year indicated that neither government was enforcing its program sufficiently to warrant certification. However, in both cases, more recent evidence demonstrates that each government has taken the necessary steps to improve enforcement of its program. Accordingly, the Department of State hereby certifies Venezuela and Nigeria pursuant to Section 609(b)(2)(A) and (B).

As with the other countries currently certified, the Department of State will remain in close contact with the governments of Venezuela and Nigeria in order to ensure that their shrimp harvesting methods do not threaten sea turtles.
